when they understand what part they play in that whole, when they sense their purpose or place in a community, they thrive the only valid opposition to the product patent is the price of the patented drug the charade the FDA is parading before Congress is that they need more money and stricter laws to regulate e-commerce but, given their incomplete understanding right now, I think that scientists are genuinely concerned.